DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nakamura et al (5,779,564). Nakamura discloses a golf ball comprising a core and a dimpled cover. Nakamura does not disclose the method of making the golf ball using the standard baseball/softball eight-shape. The final product or golf ball produced appears to be no different from what is disclosed by Nakamura. If the method of production such as the eight-shaped pieces produces a patentably distinct golf ball applicant is encouraged to claim the structural differences of the final product and not the differences in the methods of productions. For example, applicant claims a core produced by connecting two eight shaped sections as shown in figures 5. However, after connecting the two pieces the final core is a standard sphere no different from what is disclosed in the prior art. The same is true for applicant's cover formed from two eight-shaped pieces. The present invention is believed to be obvious over Nakamura since the golf ball a structure equivalent to the golf ball claimed by applicant.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 21-40 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8-28-03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. After further consideration the secondary reference has been removed and the claims stand rejected over Nakamura. Applicant is claiming a product by process claim. However, product-by-process claims are not limited to the manipulations of the recited steps, only the structure implied by the steps MPEP 2113. In the instant case, the implied structure produced by the process is a golf ball comprising a core and cover. While Nakamura does not disclose the method of making the golf ball Nakamura discloses the final product implied by the steps. Applicant further argues the reference does not mention an eight-shaped configuration. However, the instant claims refer to the eight-shaped configuration as part of the process of making the golf ball. If applicant intends to overcome the prior art of record the claims must be amended to include structural features distinguishing the instant invention from the prior art.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 3711

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
